

Can he be a vet?

Peter wants to be a vet when he grows up. His teacher, Miss Chan, knew it and asked him to look after her goldfish for a week. So Miss Chan carried the fish tank to Peter's home. Miss Chan arrived at Peter's home and rang the bell. Then Peter heard it and opened the door. To his surprise, he saw Miss Chan standing outside the door. 'Good afternoon, Miss Chan! Why are you taking your fish?' he asked. 'I will go to Japan for one week. Can you take care of my goldfish? You said that you like animals and you want to be a vet,' Miss Chan said. 'OK. Don't worry,' Peter answered Miss Chan confidently.

After Miss Chan left, Peter did his homework for two hours because he had so much homework. Next, he wanted to play basketball. Peter finished playing basketball at five o'clock. He was very tired so he went to watch TV. Two hours later, Peter's mum said, 'It's time to have dinner. Let's go to eat noodles!' 'OK! No problem!' Peter shouted. They went to the restaurant. One hour later, Peter and his mum came back home. He took a bath, brushed his teeth and went to bed. Peter said, 'Today is a busy day!'

The next day, Peter woke up and he went to the living room. He saw the fish tank. Suddenly, he remembered he didn't feed the goldfish yesterday. He saw the goldfish dead. 'Oh, no! The fish is dead! What should I do?'

At that moment, Peter tried to solve the problem. At the same time, Mum came into the living room. Mum tried to help Peter and got an idea. Mum took Peter to a pet shop. They bought a new goldfish for Miss Chan. The next day, Miss Chan came back to Hong Kong. She saw one goldfish was different from the other goldfish. Peter said, 'Miss Chan, I'm so sorry. I didn't take good care of your fish. I think I need to be careful and study hard!' 'You will be fine and good. I believe you,' replied Miss Chan.

